Subject

Puberty Hormone Blockers

Details of enquiry

How many children (under the age of 18) have been treated with puberty hormone blockers at the Gender Identity Development Service (GIDS) in each respective year from 2009 to 2019 inclusive?

Response Sent

The prescription and administration of hormone blockers is carried out, not by the Trust, but by other NHS bodies, such as endocrine clinics and primary care providers, following referral from the Trust. The records of such treatment are held on individual patient files and the Trust does not maintain a central register of such information from which the data you request could be collated.
